THE DEVIL'S DIARY

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF
EVANSTON HIGH SCHOOL
1950~1951

Theme

"Education makes a people easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave."

Such has been the pattern set by the dynamic leaders of the nineteenth century who forged ahead against all odds to make Wyoming an exemplary state, small in numbers, but significant in achievements.

The principles of democracy, though embryonic in many sections in those frontier days, were cultured and fortified in Wyoming. Here education for youth began in the territory of Fort Laramie in 1852. In 1873 a compulsory education law demanded three months' school each year for every child between the ages of 6-18. Cheyenne had a public high school in 1875, and in 1887 the University of Wyoming was opened.

The goals have been attained through tenacity and steadfastness of purpose of those who chose this "Buffalo" state as a "Mecca" of opportunity.

"The school is not the end but only the beginning of an education." Other phases have not been neglected. "All men are born equal": these immortal words were re-echoed by early legislators who gave economic freedom to women.

Yes, they saw the need of making Wyoming attractive to women, especially to teachers, that their dream of planting a western citadel could be accomplished.

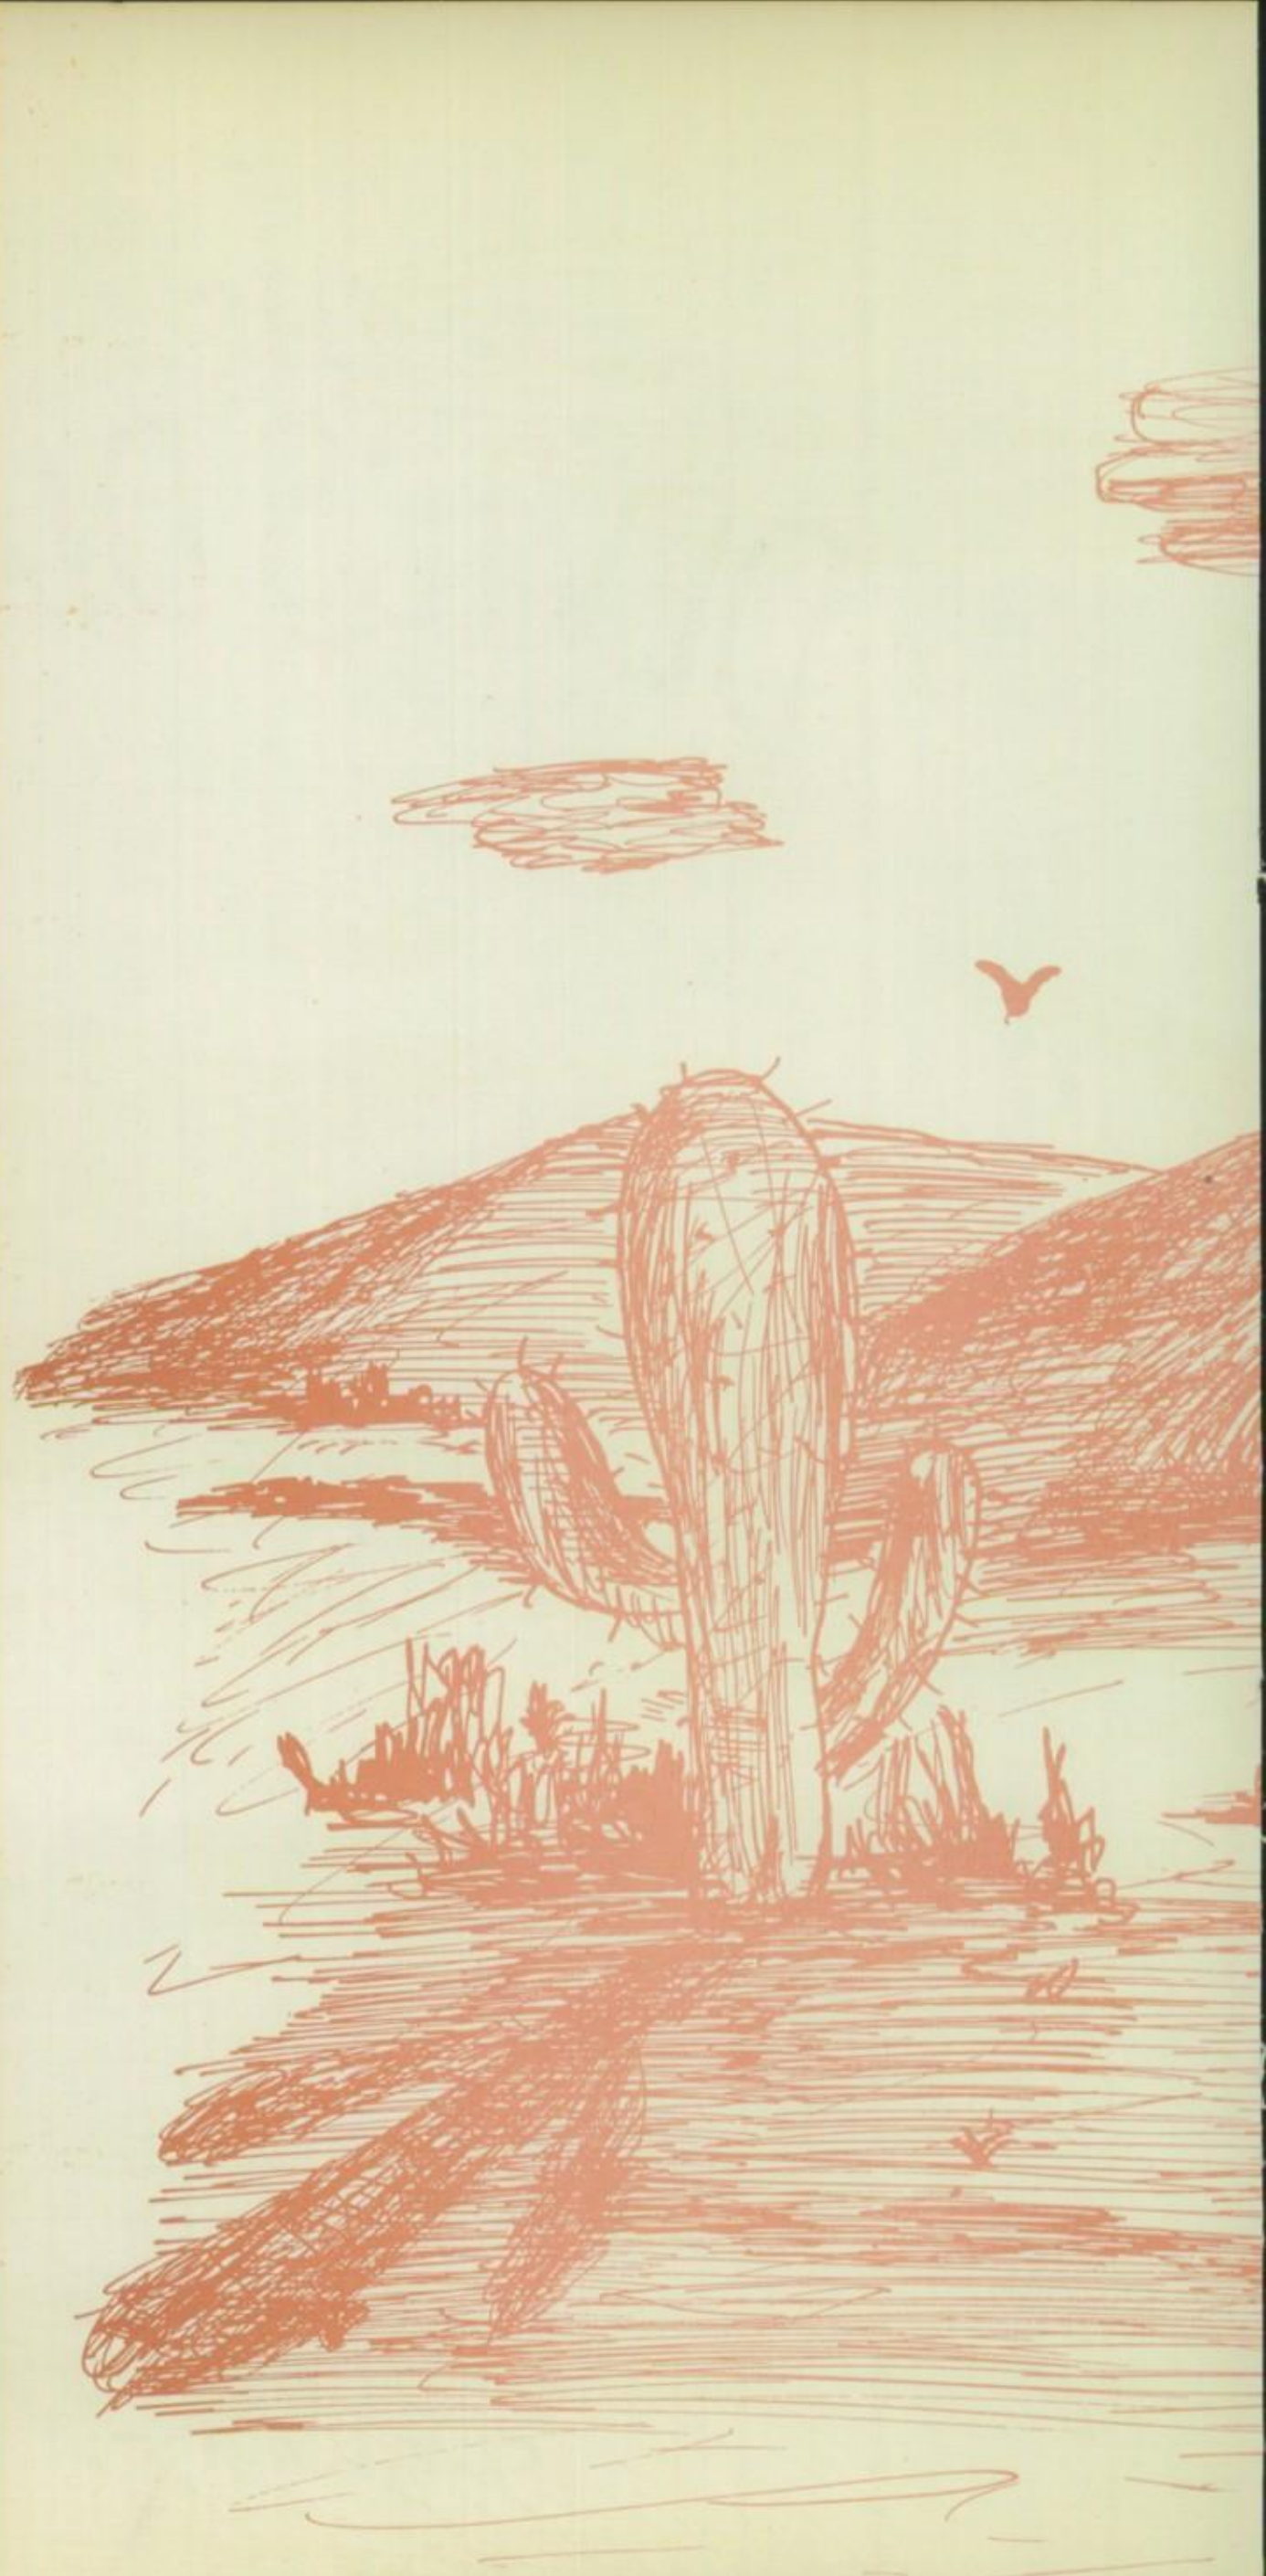
The property and income of women were protected. Economic equality in wage earning was assured if qualifications and training were equal.

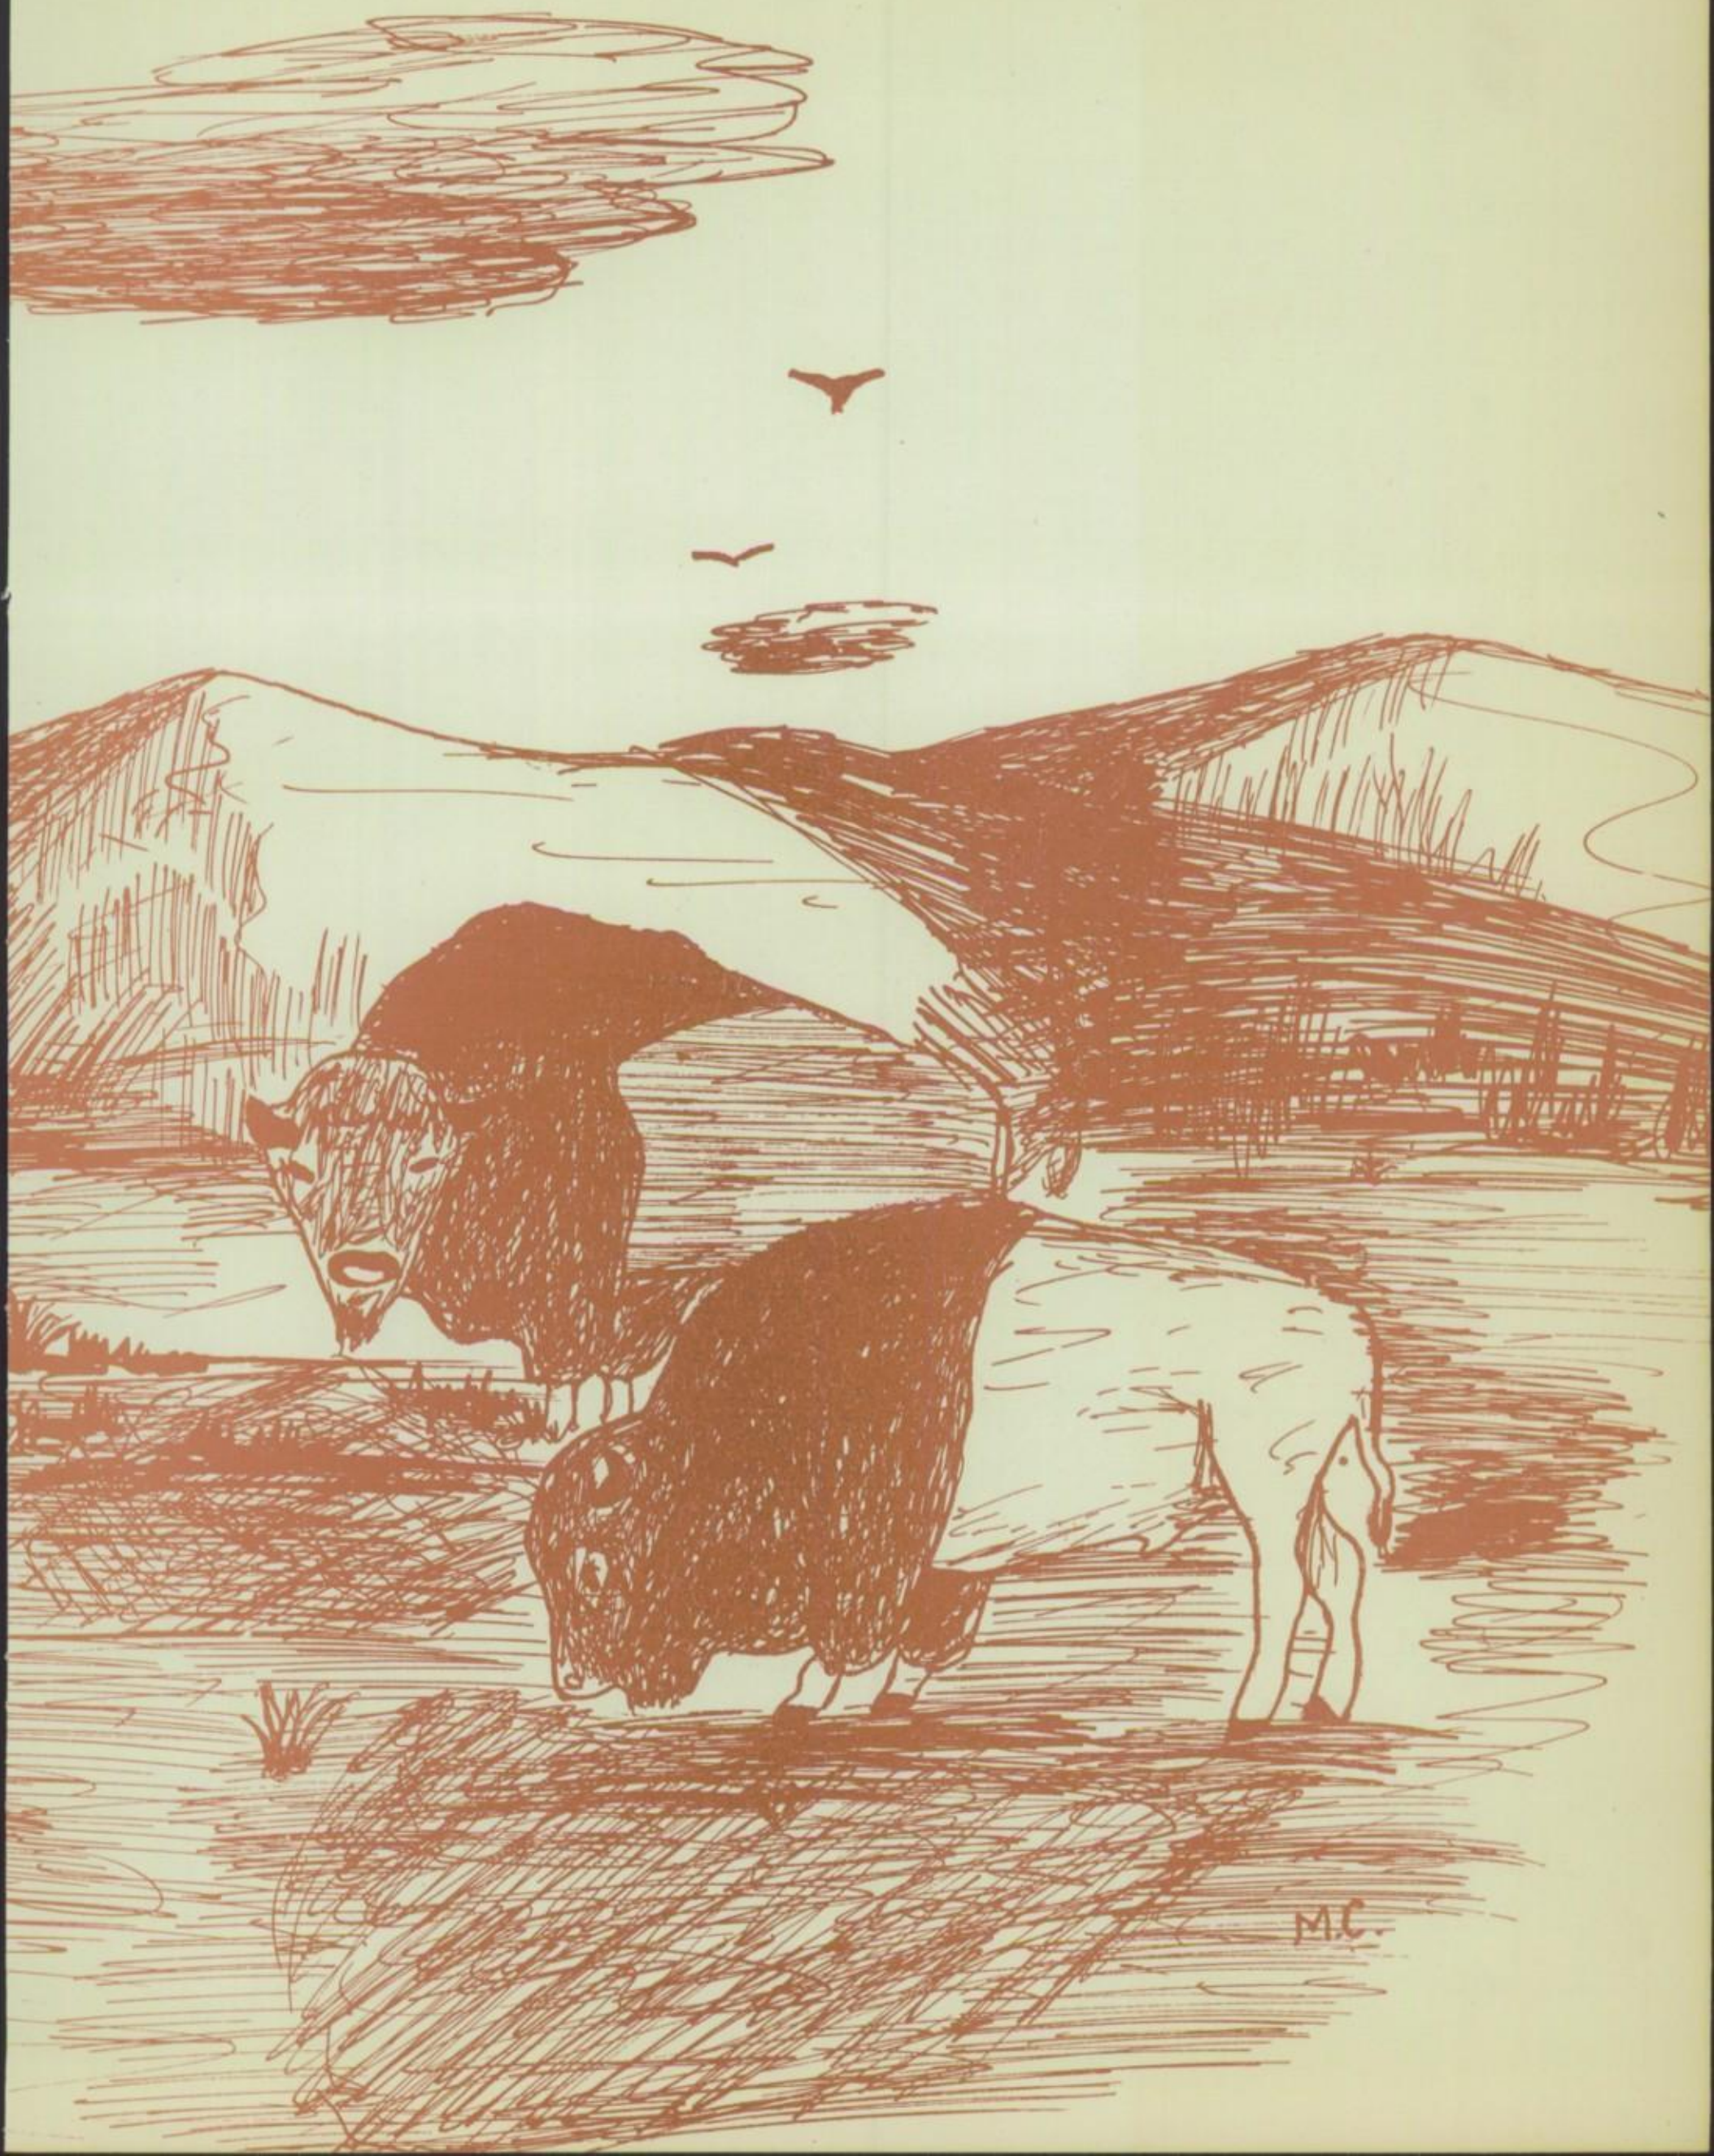
To be first to give suffrage to women was also the record of Wyoming in 1869 while yet a territory.

We are proud of our educational standards in Evanston. We realize that an educational system isn't worth a great deal if it teaches boys to get a living and doesn't teach them how to live.

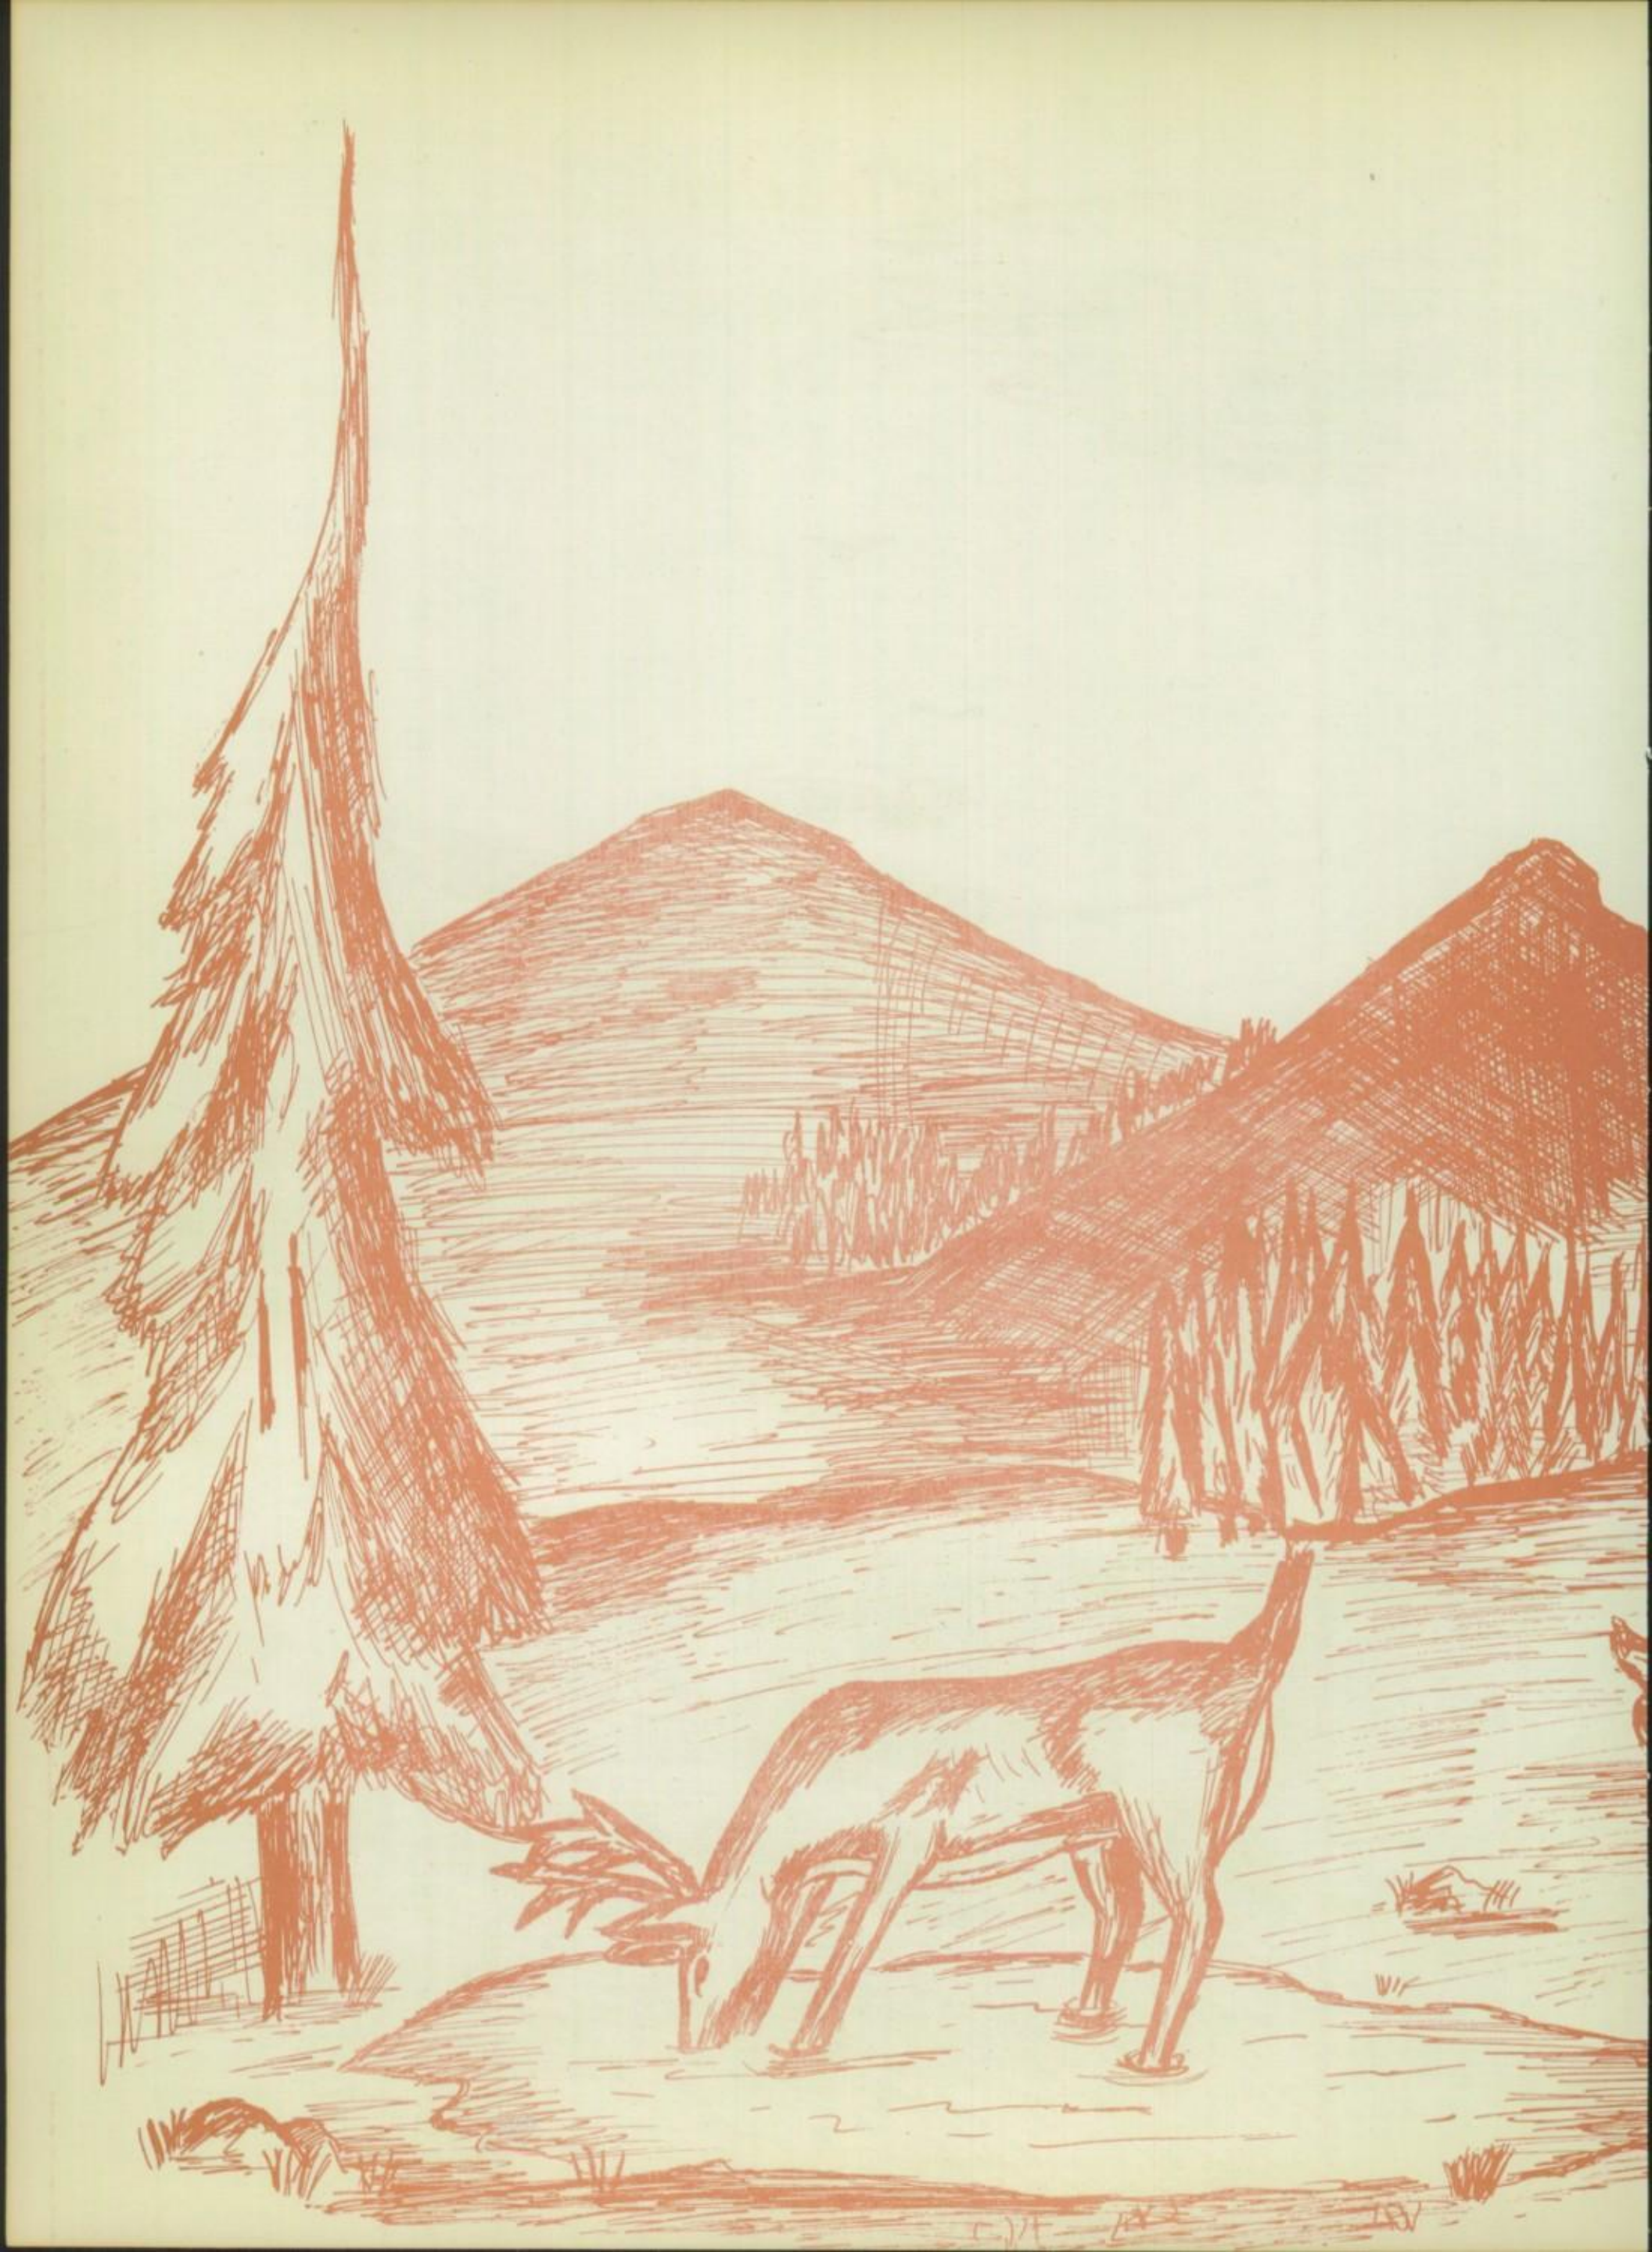
"A nation that has the schools has the future."

May the United States hold an eternal future, colossal and free. Let it not be said Wyoming failed to do its part.





M.C.



Dedication

"It was making education not only common to all, but in some sense compulsory on all, that the destiny of the free republica of America was practically settled."

The pioneers in Wyoming education, culture and progress saw an imperative need of training the youth as a bulwark for a free and democratic American way of life. With open minds they struggled to build our state on a firm footing that it may hold an honorable and recognizable position in the West.

Our part is to ever revere the standards set by these "trailblazers," and to continuously work toward increasing the number of high school and college graduates that we may lead our country in realizing that "education is the cheap defense of nations."

"Contemporaries appreciate the man rather than the merit; posterity will regard the merit rather than the man."

To the leaders and founders of our commendable educational system in Wyoming, we do dedicate this book.

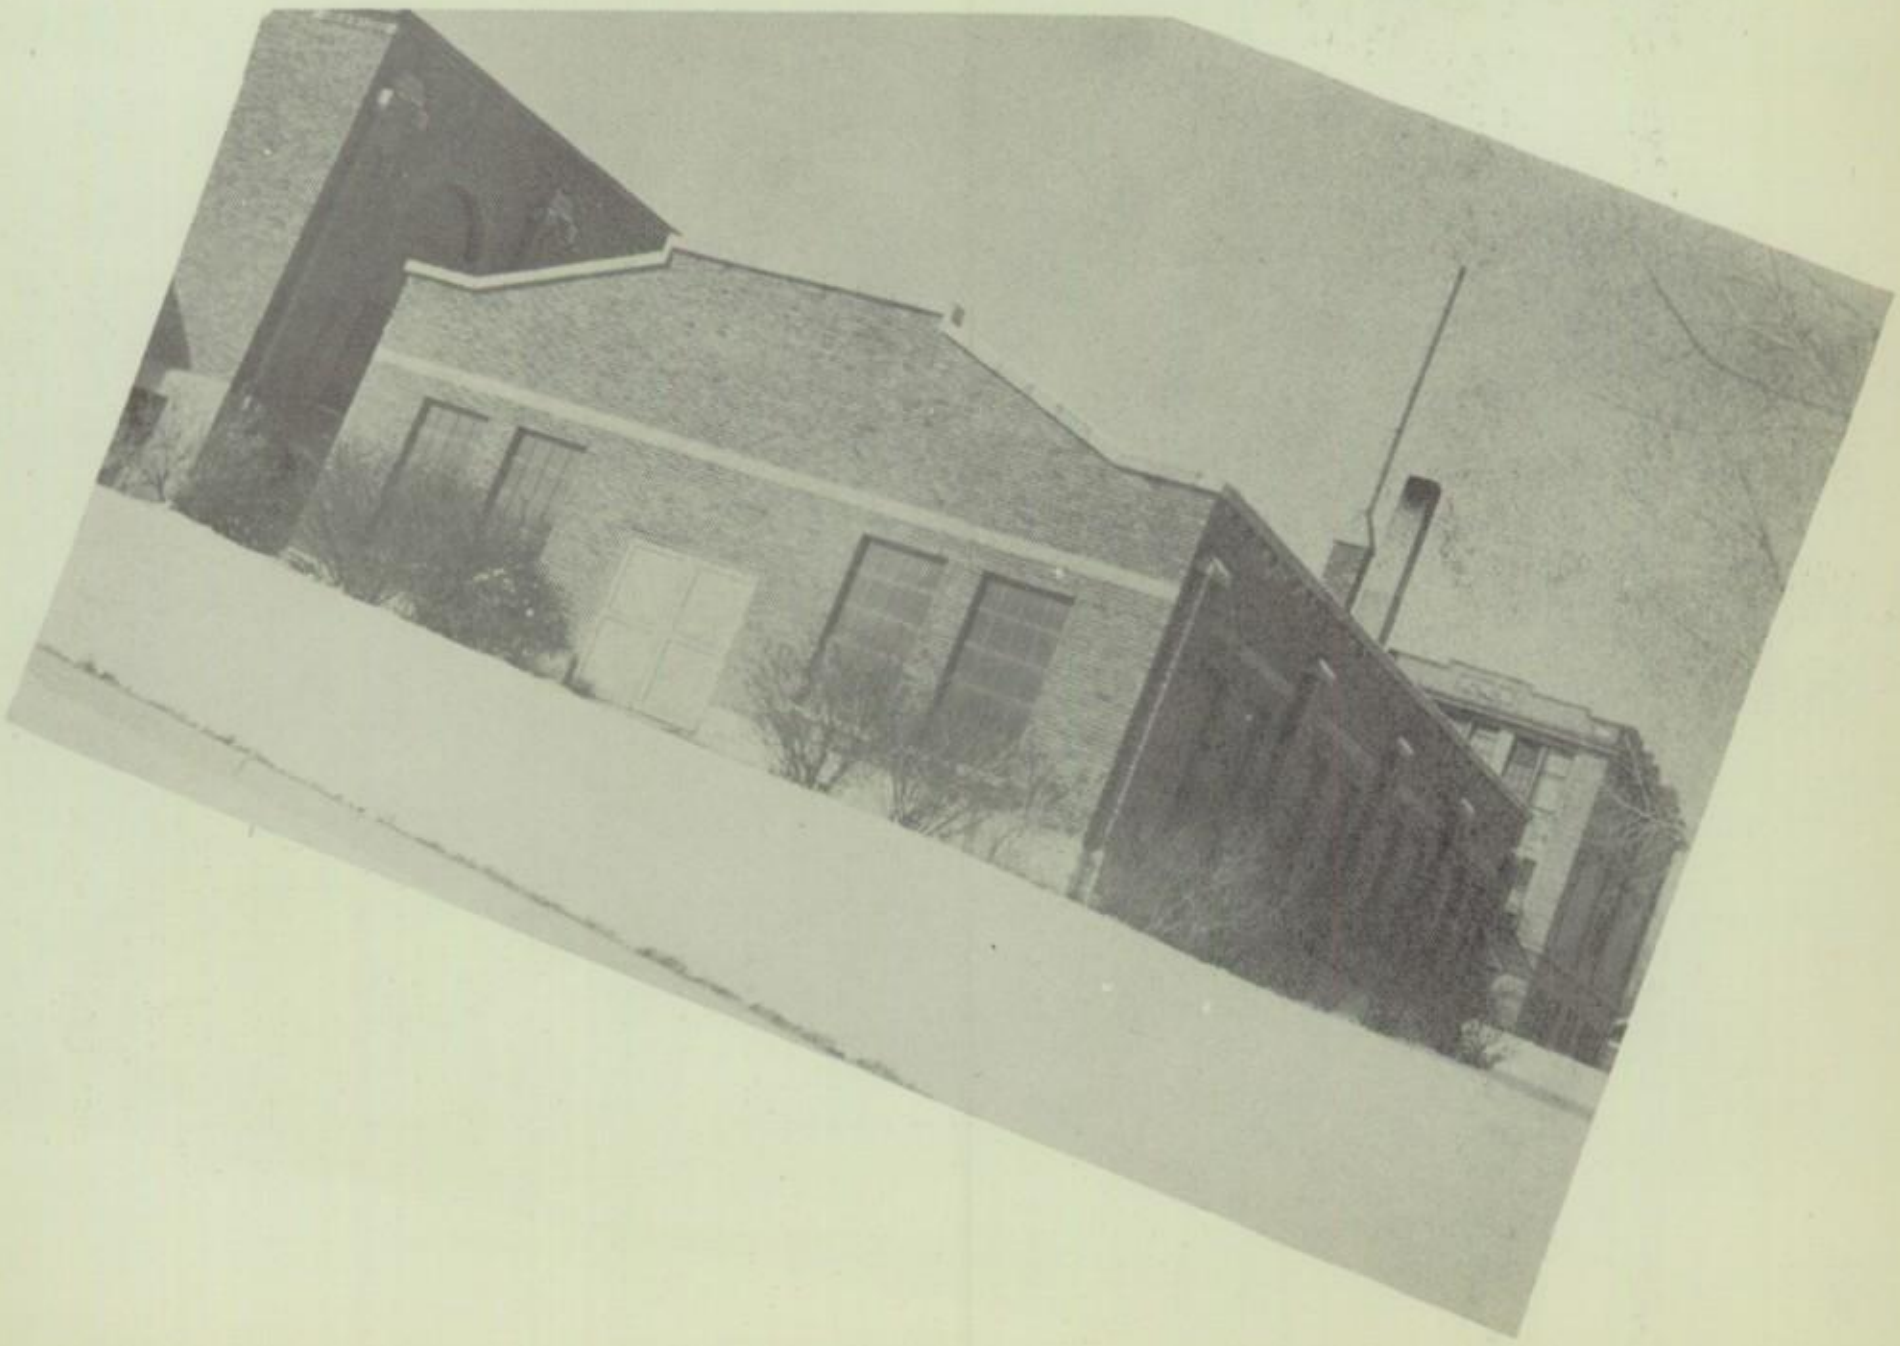
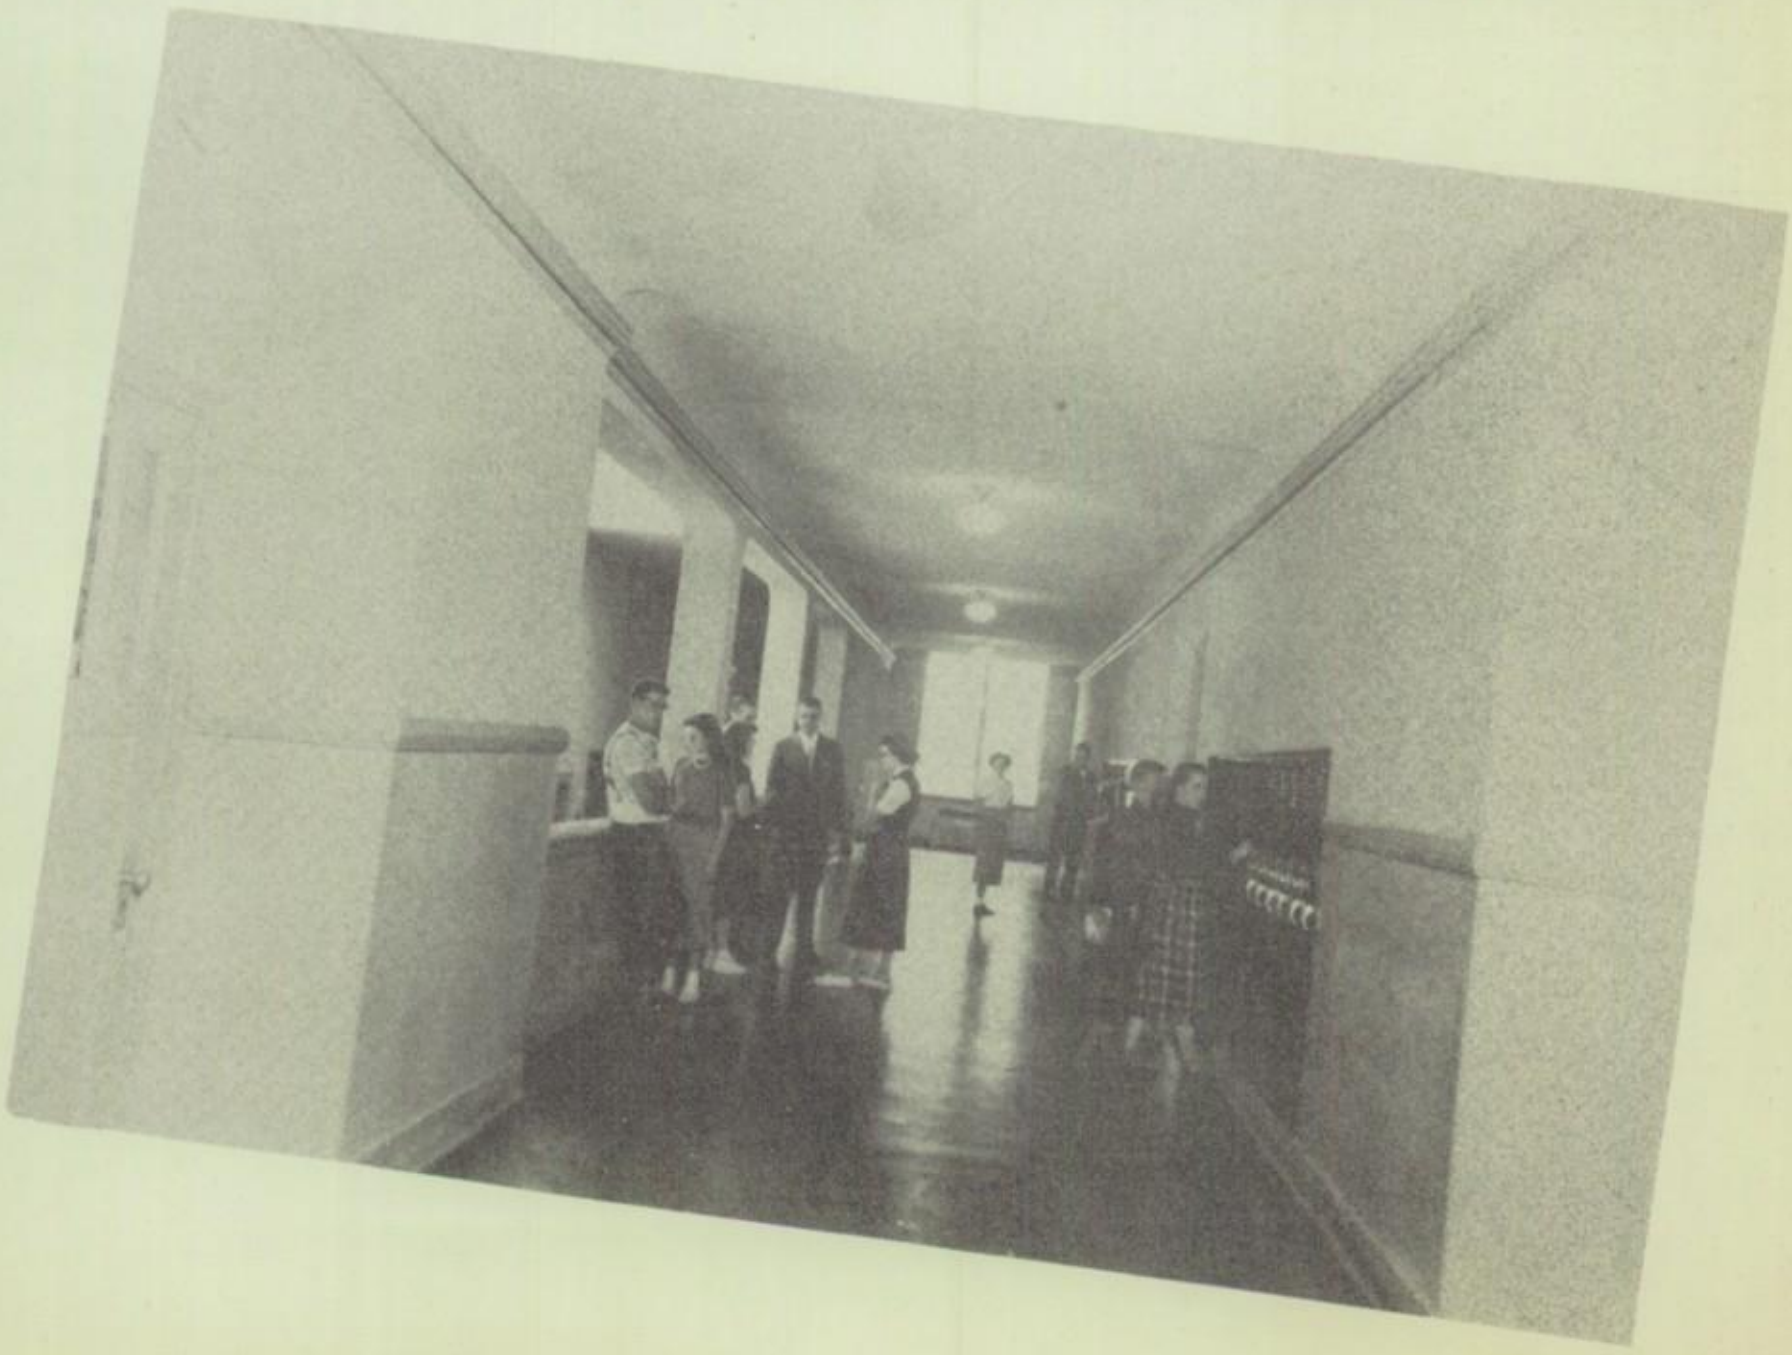
GYMNASIUM





That you may recall the happy days you've spent at EHS, we, the journalism class, under the supervision of Mrs. Thompson, have arranged, typed and edited this 1950-51 Devil's Diary.

Telling the story of the advancement and the standards of education in Wyoming, a typical western state, is the theme of the yearbook. This western idea is cleverly depicted by the sketches for each section contributed by Mr. Welsh and the art department. The colors of brown and orange help to illustrate and brighten the pages.

Special commendation goes to Lila Carpenter and Florence Brown, who are not members of the journalism class, for their writing of the poetical "Dear Diary."

All group and individual photographs were taken by Mr. Jack Anderson of Preston, Idaho. Snapshots for the various clubs and departments were taken throughout the 1950-51 school year by Miss Michelstetter. Snaps for the photo section were taken by students and citizens of the community.

The typical Wyoming symbol, a bucking horse, on the cover was suggested by Mrs. Thompson and sketched by Gary Albertson. The book was printed by Mr. Budger Davis on the multilith machine. Both the binding and the making of the cover were done by the Hiller Bookbinding Company of Salt Lake City.

In future years the memories of each student will vary, and thus this Devil's Diary will hold a special meaning for each individual.

As editor of the Devil's Diary I sincerely hope that these pages will aid you in recalling all the treasured events on the 1950-51 EHS calendar.

At statehood in 1890, Wyoming had a well-developed grade school system with a university at the head. A mandate from the people contained in the constitution stated that education must remain free to all. In addition, eight high schools, including Evanston, were offering college preparatory courses.

Thus runs the early educational history of our very young state, and from that time the narrative tells of continuous progress. Evanston High school has been recognized since 1918 as a member of the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. In addition, it is accredited by the State Department of Education and the University of Wyoming because of the standards maintained.

However, this record is not one upon which to rest our laurels. Rather it should serve as an inspiration from which to build and continue to grow in order that Evanston pupils may be prepared to the best of our ability to meet problems of citizenship in our community, state, and nation. This is no light task.

It has been a pleasure working with the students of Evanston High School during the school term of 1950-51. Your co-operation and contributions are largely responsible for the high standards of excellence characteristic of your school.

You youth of today must realize the importance of an education. Many opportunities are provided for you; it is your responsibility to take advantage of these as they appear. The only price you pay for an education is your effort and willingness to accept that which is offered to you through the public schools. Continuous efforts on your part will assure you of a high standing in society.

Rudger Davis

Business Manager

An indispensable man "about school" is Rudger Davis, whose jobs increase with his years of service in the Evanston public schools.

Students and teachers meet him daily in his secretarial duties, which are innumerable. The last day of each month he is welcomed by the teachers with the all important medium of exchange, the pay check. Selling tickets at games and social activities, checking in and out books, acting postman, guardian of the finances, records, records, advice, questions, question--"Where to go," "Why," "Where will I find this or that" are all infinite, yet voluminous items of his daily agenda.

Though Rudger is often abrupt and frank in his remarks, his humor and sincerity overshadow his unintentional retorts. "Once a friend, always a friend," holds true to him.

The faculty of Evanston High School

Janyce, It's been nice meeting you. You're an active girl in school. I think the way to get the most enjoyment out of school. Keep it up. Dorothy Van Driel

The gay, active teacher you see in the halls of EHS is Miss Dorothy Van Driel. She is 5' 1½" tall, has green eyes and is a natural blonde. Her ambition is, of all things, to be a college teacher and incidently, to travel. Last summer she visited western Europe. Miss Van Driel's spare time is filled with square dancing, cooking for herself, and attending basketball games. Bookkeeping, general business, and shorthand are the subjects which she teaches so capably..

The man with the horn, Ted L. Anderson, is the smiling, good-natured music instructor who directs Senior High, Junior High and the elementary schools in bands and choruses. His music students have received high ratings in district and state contests. Mr. Anderson's leisure hours are spent giving private lessons and leading a dance orchestra which is in great demand in Uinta County and neighboring towns.

One of the most active, versatile and sociable members of the faculty is short, dark-haired Miss Lois Michelstetter. She teaches Latin, Spanish, and ninth grade English. In proof of her versatility, she sponsors the Spanish Club, Junior High cheerleaders, Racerettes and is also co-sponsor of the Spotlight. Her chief 'after hours' interests are music, travel, and photography. Last summer she furthered her education by attending summer school at the University of Wyoming, where she took courses in music and astronomy.

Lois Michelstetter

Have hopefully kept vigilance over us

Virginia J. Thompson

A versatile and active faculty member is Mrs. Virginia J. Thompson, teacher of journalism, English II and American Civics. She copes with the challenging problems of editing the Paralyzer, school newspaper, and the Devil's Diary. Traveling is her favorite hobby. Such is obvious by her recent trips. Last August she toured northern California and Oregon. New Year's Day found her in Pasadena attending the famous Tournament of Roses parade and the Rose Bowl game between the University of California and Michigan. To further her high educational ambitions, she attended BYU last summer.

Kay H. Petersen

Who's our coach? Yes, it is Coach Kay Petersen, who is a welcomed member of the faculty again this year. His duties of coaching the basketball team and assisting Coach Gruden with the football squad keep him busy. In addition to coaching, he teaches social studies in the Junior High. The Petersens now have a new basketball player in the family, born January 20. This is their first child. Coach Kay's main hobby is photography. His interests in general are as he said, 'just sports.'

It has been a great pleasure having you in my class. I hope that I have taught you a little about the journey of life. You have a wonderful personality — use it to become a success.

Born in Norfolk, Nebraska, Miss Rosalie Markey has boosted our girls sports considerably. She organized the Girls Tumbling Team, has taught the girls tennis, volley ball, baseball and is present sponsor of Pepsters and Cheerleaders. She also has a regular class of science in the Junior High. Last summer she was recreational director here in Evanston. Miss Markey attended high school in Omaha, Nebraska, and graduated from Loretta Heights College in Denver, and the Colorado State College in Greeley.

Given us courage for the days ride

Elvira Mehegan

The Senior High mathematics' teacher is Mrs. Elvira Mehegan, an E. H. S. graduate. Last summer she attended the University of Wyoming in Laramie. Mrs. Mehegan is spending her first year alone since she began teaching in Evanston. John, her oldest son, is going to the University of Colorado in Boulder. Edmund is in the U. S. Navy; and Paul, her youngest, is attending Notre Dame at South Bend, Indiana. Eileen, her only daughter, is married and lives in Denver. Sewing, cooking and managing her home consume Mrs. Mehegan's leisure hours.

The tall, dark, friendly man seen in the halls speaking to the students of E. H. S. is the art instructor and speech director, Mr. John Welsh. He holds top honors of being one of the affirmed bachelors on the staff. The excellent plays directed by him through the LaCita Mard and Thespian clubs are proof of his dramatic talent. Mr. Welsh enjoys skating and dancing. He admits that his ambition is to teach dramatics in a university or enter the theatrical world professionally.

Best Wishes
Marjorie Shelley

Miss Marjorie Shelley of Minneapolis, Minnesota, joined the faculty this year to teach home economics and sponsor the FHA Club. This is her first venture in the classroom. For the past two and a half years she was employed by the Simplicity Patterns Company of New York City. Her leisure hours are spent driving her car, golfing, swimming, and sewing.

On the lone prairie of life's highway--

Martha K. Peets

One of the most friendly members of the teaching staff is Miss Martha Peets, prompt and efficient in her responsibilities. Chemistry, physics and biology are on her schedule. Besides teaching, she sponsors the Bi-Phy-Chem club, which she organized last year. Although a native of Minneapolis, Minnesota, she has found friends and permanent interests in Wyoming. Last summer she did further work on her Master's degree at the University of Wyoming. Miss Peets has a flair for reading and working on scrapbooks.

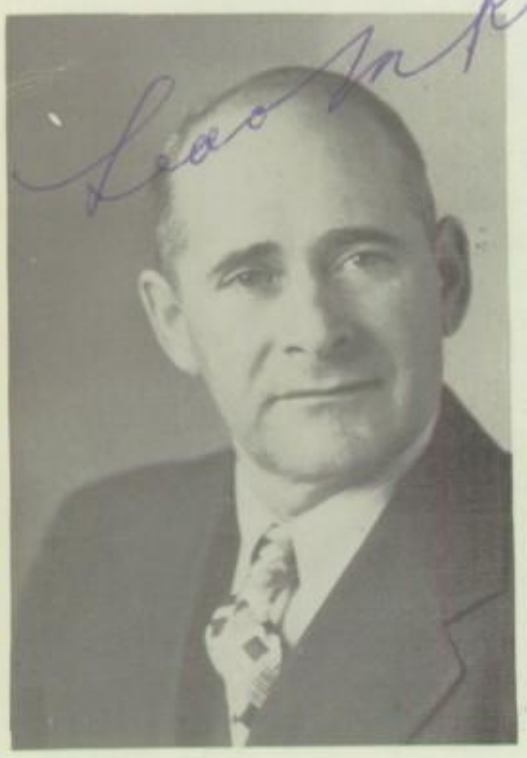
Best of luck to you in the next few years in school. Hoping you in class last year would be a pleasure.
Sincerely,
A. Maurer

Mr. Arthur Maurer, guidance teacher, is a former graduate of the University of Wyoming. He is originally from Glendale, California, where he attended the Glendale College, and later the University of Southern California. Mr. Maurer has many hobbies such as golf, baseball and other types of recreational work. This is Mr. Maurer's second year in the Evanston schools. Besides his guidance work he teaches social studies, science and health in the Junior High and world history in the Senior High.

An important member of the faculty is Mrs. Ernestine Kabell, who has the honor of having taught at Evanston High School since 1929. She teaches regular classes in Typing I and II. The excellent arrangement, organization and management of the library are credited to Mrs. Kabell, librarian. She is ever ready to assist students and teachers in research and reference work.

Inspired us to build a camp of solidity

Who is the jolly, dark complexioned mathematics teacher in the Junior High? Of course, it is Miss Adeline Miller, who found her way to Wyoming from Belmont, Nebraska. She has a very pleasing personality which the students cherish. Her hobbies of reading and sewing are of a quiet and worthwhile nature. Miss Miller is known for the advise and assistance she gives to all of her students.



Leao McKirlin

A familiar face to everyone at EHS is the teacher of woodworking and shop, Mr. Leao Kirlin. The excellent work turned out in this field is proof of his ability. Besides conducting his regular classes, he is co-sponsor of the Junior Class. Every sport-loving fan will think of Mr. Kirlin as a referee of football and basketball games during the school season, and of baseball during the summer. He spends his summer vacation in the mountains working for the forest patrol where he marks trees, patrols areas for fires, and checks telephone lines.

The sport of angling is not exclusively a masculine pastime. Even lady pedagogues find diversion in casting the rod. Such is true of Miss Cora Ellis, teacher of seventh and eighth grade English in the Junior High. She also finds gardening and horse-back riding pleasurable ways to occupy her leisure time. Miss Ellis is co-sponsor of the Spotlight and of the eighth grade class, and assists in the dramatics work in the Junior High.

As a citadel against breaking our ideals

A newcomer to the faculty this year and an eligible bachelor is quiet mannered Lyman Hill, who has started his teaching career here at EHS. He is originally from Tooele, Utah. Previous to teaching he was a gunner's mate in the Navy. Later he attended the University of Utah where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. Mr. Hill teaches two classes of junior English, two of senior and one of sophomore. He finds diversion in swimming, football, basketball and dancing.

A quiet and reserved member of the faculty, who teaches social studies to seventh and eighth grades in the Junior High, is Miss Elizabeth Billing of Lisbon, North Dakota. She received her degree from the State Teacher's College in Valley City, North Dakota. Since then she has attended the State Teachers College in Greeley, Colorado, and the University of Wyoming. Miss Billing has many hobbies of which music, traveling and reading are her favorites. She finds histories, biographies and literature very impressive.

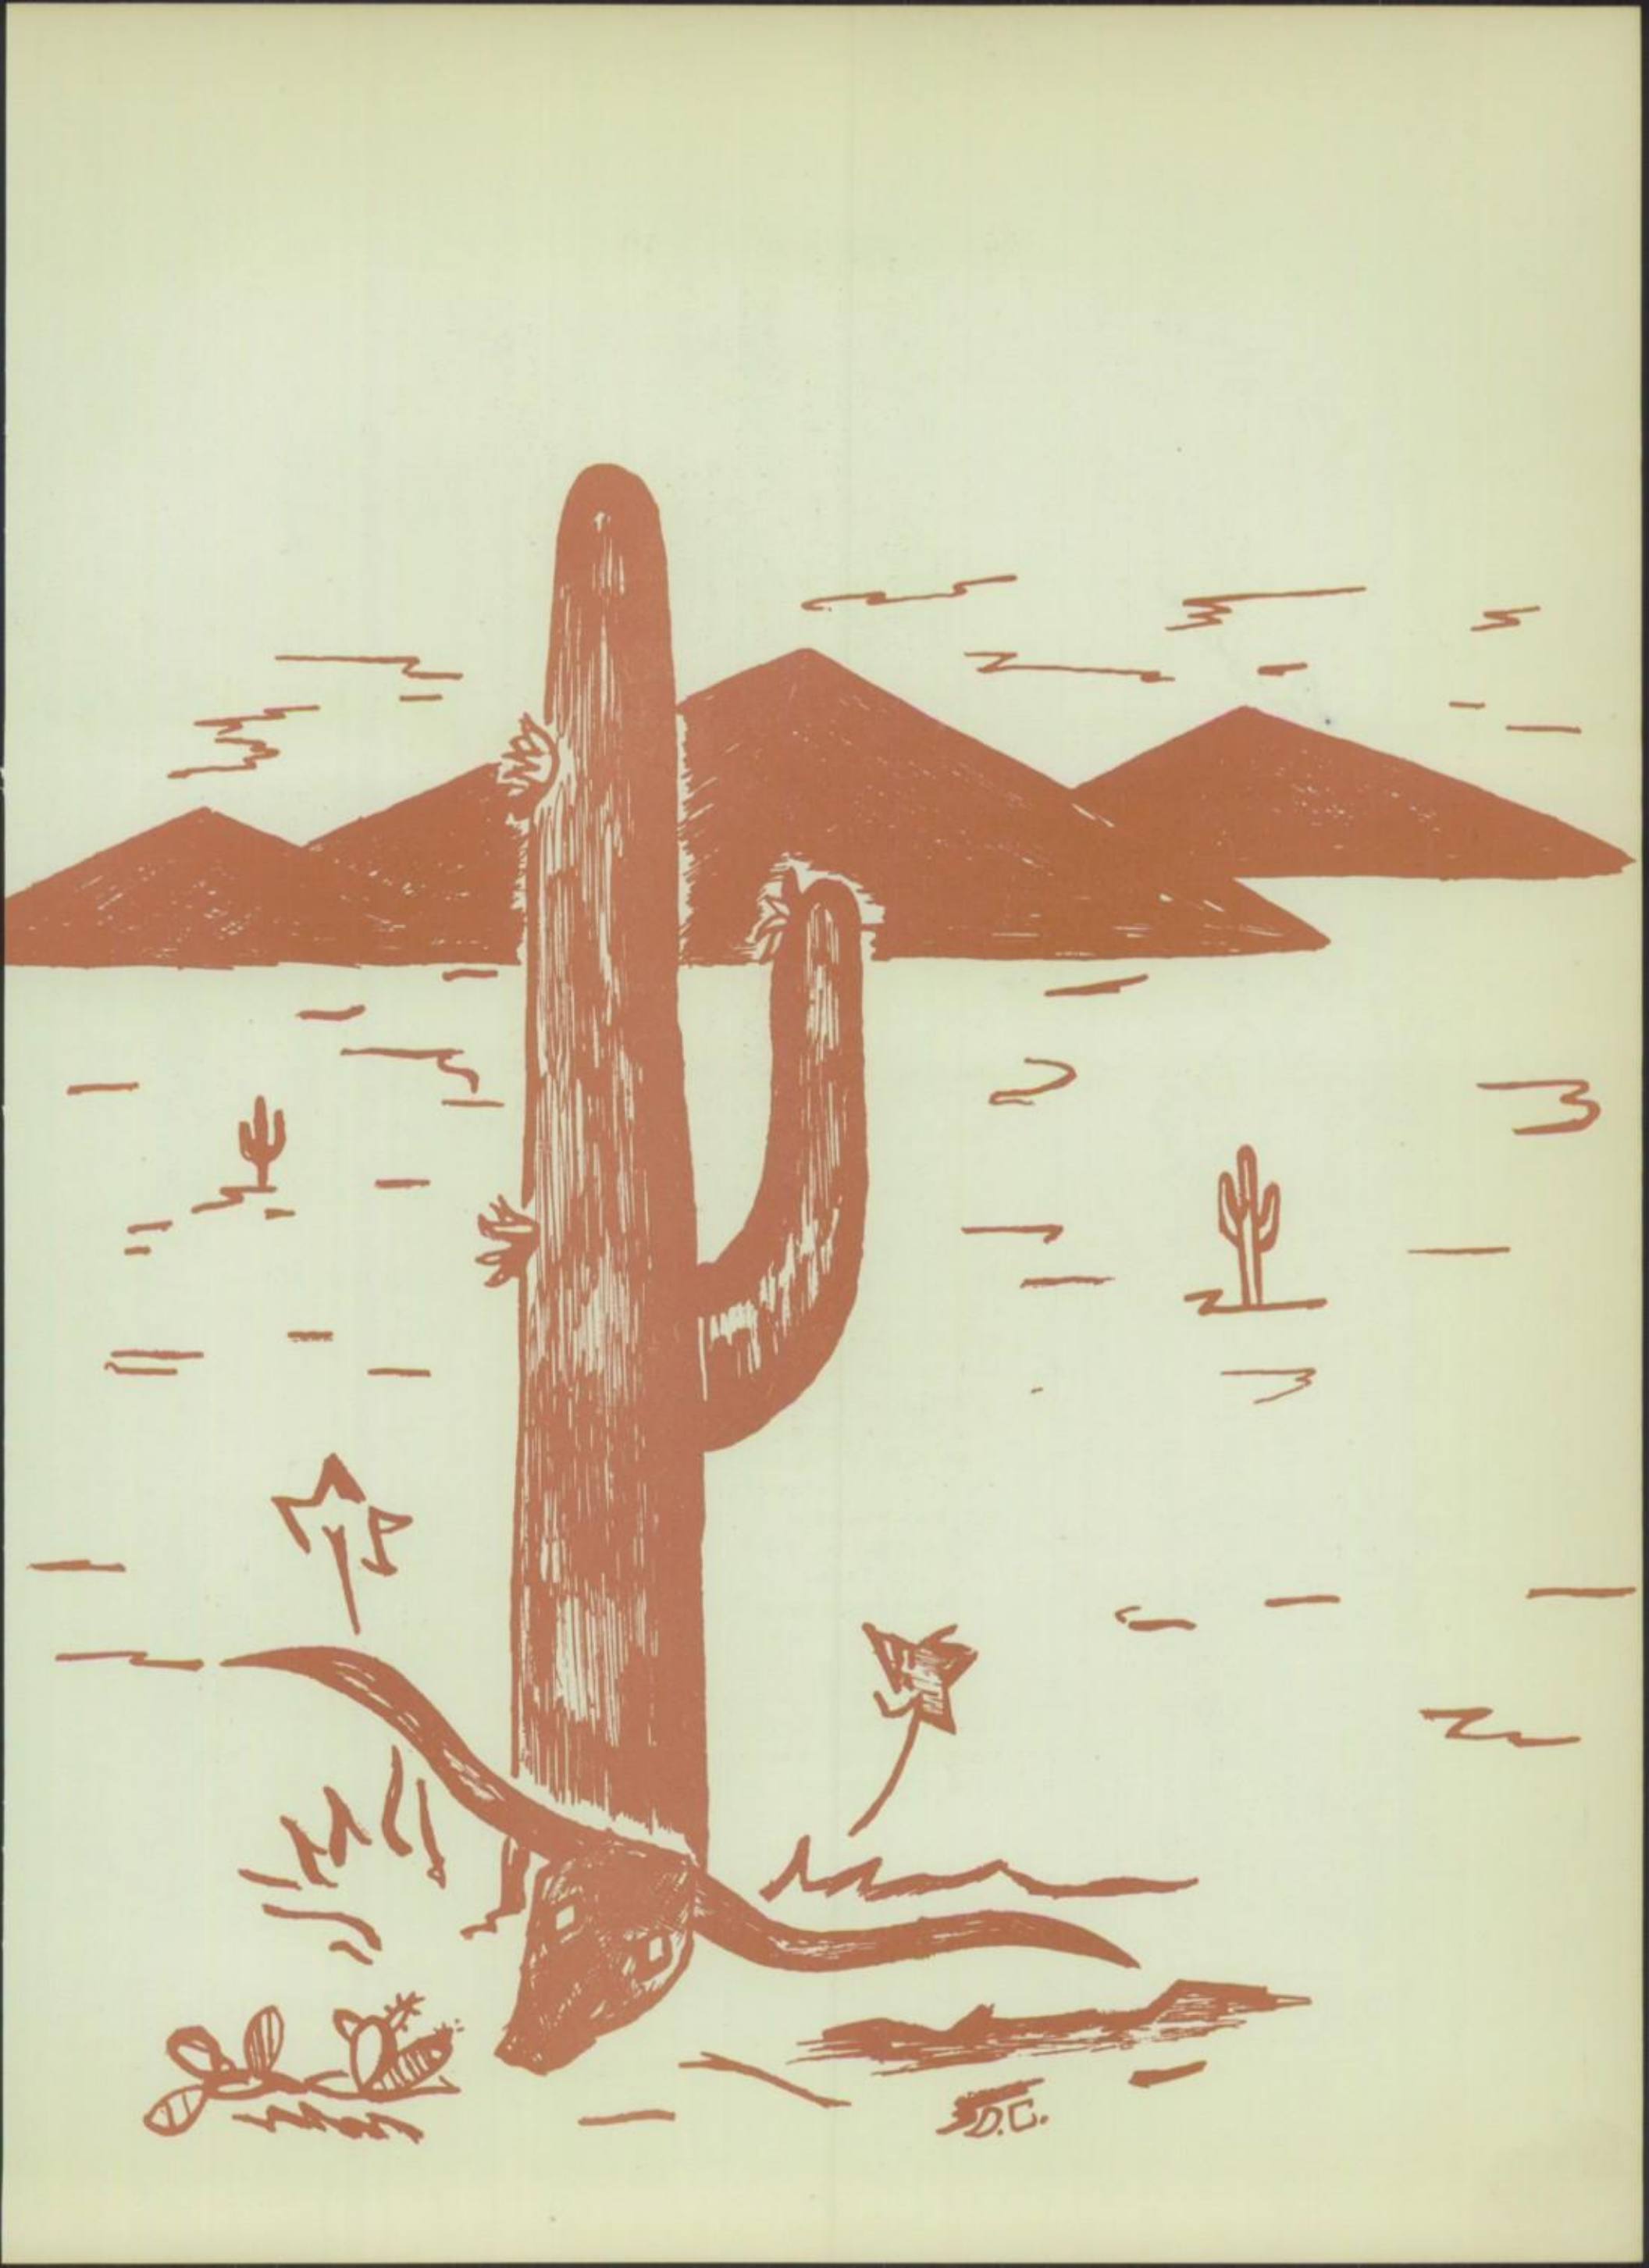
The good natured football coach is none other than Frank Gruden. Along with coaching football and basketball, Mr. Gruden has many hobbies which include dancing, watching college football, traveling, fishing, and attending summer school. He acquired his M.A. in secondary education last summer at the University of Wyoming. He also teaches science in the Junior High.

William A. Brown and Ervis C. Hiatt, Custodians

Mr. William A. Brown is completing his eighth year as the custodian in Senior High. He is friendly and co-operative with students and teachers and works faithfully towards making the Senior High a pleasant place in which to work.

Mr. Ervis Hiatt assists Mr. Brown and is in charge of the Junior High buildings. He, too, has done his job thoroughly.

During the summer, while we are on our vacations, these two men are still hard at work taking care of the grounds. We appreciate their interest and efforts.



Senior High Council

Mr. Chappell

Jean Cole
President

Student council--the guiding light of EHS--consists of student body officers, standing committee chairmen, class presidents, homeroom presidents and the sponsor, Mr. Chappell.

The purpose of the student council is to have equal representatives for all classes and homerooms. All problems are brought to council and carried back to the homeroom via the council report and homeroom presidents. All committee chairmen have at least one representative of each class on his committee.

Meetings are held each Monday in the faculty lounge.

This year they sponsored dances after weekend games. They also sponsored the annual Homecoming activities.

The Junior High Council is an important organization for seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Its functions are similar to the council in Senior High, therefore, enabling them to be well fit to manage the problems they will face in their future high school years.

They meet each Monday with their sponsor, Mr. Rex, to discuss the current problems and to talk of the activities they plan to sponsor during the year.

Graduation, May 25, the day of sad, gay, and tearful faces came after twelve long years of waiting. Now let's look back and take inventory of our achievements.

In our elementary education at Clark, Brown, and East, we devoted many of our hours in putting on little plays such as "Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs".

In the fall of '39, fifty-five eager but frightened students entered Junior High. We, being "greenhorns in a new atmosphere," were deprived of many activities.

Next two years of Junior High we braved our way through new experiences. The ninth grade contributed six ball players to the Junior High team and three cheerleaders. Commencement exercises were held May 20, 1948, with Lila Carpenter, valedictorian, and Nilo Atkinson, salutatorian. The best all-around boy and girl were Nilo Atkinson and Jackie Martin respectively.

Amid overalls for the girls and skirts for the boys, we entered Senior High. In the annual water fight we came out water soaked but full fledged sophomores. October 23, 1948, we cleaned up the debris on the "E" hill. Our Sophomore Stomp, held November 19, was a gala occasion.

In our junior year we held the Junior Prom on April 22, 1950, with the theme, "Dreamer's Holiday." Marie Burleigh queen, and Ronald Frazier, king, reigned supreme. Our class rings arrived on February 4, 1950.

During our senior year the "firing of the 'E'" was a main event. Homecoming was a success even though Old Man Weather was against us. Our last year at EHS we contributed four ball players and two cheerleaders. Then, at the last, came "Sluff Day," and our Senior Hop, which was held April 28, 1951.

Thus the twelve year schooling period for us was at an end. Now, with pleasant memories, we leave the care of EHS in the hands of the future Seniors.

As Seniors, we are facing the open range --

In the fall of 1940 we entered school. Our class was split in three districts, Clark, Fast, and Brown schools during our first, second and third grades.

In 1943 we entered the fourth grade where we were all brought together at Clark school. We took our first look at the classmates with whom we would graduate. During that year we learned all about our state of Wyoming and sang the state song.

In the fifth and sixth grades our boys began to get the basketball fever. In the sixth grade we defeated the seventh grade in a hard played game.

September, 1946, seventy-five excited students entered Junior High. It ended our recesses, but began our dances.

In the eighth grade Joan Crompton represented our class with the cheerleaders.

Sixty-nine of us entered the ninth grade. This year we were represented with four cheerleaders, Joan Crompton, Lois Harding, Ardis Troyer and Joyce Peart. The highlight of this year was promotion exercises, May 26, 1949. Sixty-seven were promoted with Barbara Nielsen as valedictorian and Ardis Troyer as salutatorian.

We then entered high school with sophomore initiation. The Sophomore Stomp on November 10 was the delightful social event of the year. In March we won first honors with our minstrel class assembly.

This year, as juniors, we received our class rings, and on April 21 sponsored the Junior Prom. Now we are looking forward to our senior year and graduation.

In a beautiful rose garden, with a wishing well, trellises, a silvery moon and all that adds to romanticism, the Junior Class held its annual Promenade in the high school gymnasium April 21, 1951.

They, with their special guests, including seniors, sophomores, faculty, parents, and alumni, danced gaily to the theme music, "Our Very Own."

Mr. Kirlin, Miss Peets and Miss Shelley, sponsors, cooperated with the Prom committee, right, in making this the outstanding social event of the year.

In the fall of 1941 we began our elementary education in the East Grade, Clark and Brown schools. In these places of learning we were first introduced to the teaching we were going to receive for the next twelve years. Three years later we were all united at Clark school, and here we met the classmates who would travel with us during our later school years.

In the fall of 1947 a big moment was brought into our young lives--our entrance into Junior High school, where we were under the sponsorship of Mr. Gruden and Miss Ellis. It was during this time that we sponsored our first dance and began the second six years of climbing the ladder of education. In our freshman year all of the Junior High cheerleaders were chosen from our class. They were Joette Crook, Milton Homer, Dona Rice, Glenna Putnam and Dorothy Kochiras. This year we graduated from Junior High. Mariel Sims and Kenny Houtz tied for valedictorian and salutorian; Glenna Putnam and Walter Pirainen were chosen best all-around girl and boy. This year we were awarded the citizenship cup, making this an honor our class had received two years in succession. Honors were ours as we began our first year in Senior High. We won first place in the Homecoming parade, and had one of the cheerleaders, Joette Crook, chosen from our class. We also sponsored our Sophomore Stomp on November 10, with "Shine on, Harvest Moon" as our theme.

As our sophomore year draws to a close, we are looking forward to our class rings and planning our Junior Prom.

The class of '54, as a result of years of hard study, have completed Junior High.

We entered school in the fall of 1942 at East, Brown, Hilliard and Clark grade schools.

Grade school passed quickly and the big day came when we entered Junior High. We registered in September of 1948 with fifty-seven pupils enrolled. Although we were a little frightened and lost, we soon got used to the new life.

During the seventh grade we gave a class assembly, in which all classmates participated.

By the time we were in the eighth grade we had become accustomed to the ideas of Junior High school. We sponsored several class dances.

Members of the basketball team from the freshman class were Jimmy Parsons, Bill Narramore, Jerry Palmer, Harold Thomason, Mark Frodsham and James Wenzel.

Out of the five cheerleaders chosen for 1950-51, four were chosen from the ninth grade. The cheerleaders were Joyce Kelly, Janyce Kelly, Dorothy Anderson and Shirley Barnes.

Ninth grade graduation was the first big event for us. The exercises were held in the auditorium May 23, 1951. Following these, our parents sponsored a formal dance in the gymnasium.

Now we look forward to entering Senior High, with special interest toward the Sophomore Stomp, the Junior Prom and the receiving of our class rings. However, most of all we look into the future, yes, to graduation from high school.

We, the seventh graders having been introduced to a new system of schooling, have not participated very much in Junior High activities. However, we took third place in the Homecoming parade, sponsored a dance and were honored by having Jon Lunsford, Jon Cook, David H. Taggart, Bruce Hudson, Larry Gerrard and Charles Albrecht on the basketball team. We are proud of our accomplishments.

Now we are eighth graders. Last year we were just being initiated, but this year we were at the top with the upper-classmen. Janice Bills was chosen cheerleader along with four ninth graders. We sponsored a dance and won first place on our Homecoming float. Richard Rice, Earl Longhurst, Richard Chappell and Jerry Lake were on the basketball team. Next year we will be the "Seniors" of Junior High.

Art

As a result of the dramatic program for 1950-1951, art students were given an opportunity to express themselves through the medium of stage design, costume design, and scene painting; thus widening their artistic experiences. Their work was exhibited in the production of 'I Remember Mama' and 'Blithe Spirit.'

In the second semester they concentrated on illustrations for the Devil's Diary.

During the course of the school year, students are given an opportunity to express themselves in numerous mediums, ranging from leather craft to painting and the graphic arts. From such a varied program, the department hopes that the students will be guided to find artistic beauty in the world in which they live.

John F. Welsh

General Science

The immediate aims of general science are to present to the pupil in an effective way those facts and principles of science which will give him an understanding and appreciation of his environment and so help him to make an adjustment to the modern world in which he lives. The third aim is to cultivate his skills and aptitudes and train him to think scientifically.

It is further recognized by general science that, to be of the greatest service to society, the pupil should be able to distinguish between facts and opinions.

General science is open to all freshmen and sophomores, and provides an excellent foundation for advanced courses in the scientific fields.

Frank R. Gruden

English - Senior High

Before people can get along together with any noticeable degree of harmony, they must be able to understand each other. Today, more than ever before, it is essential that we exchange ideas and opinions with others. Each day we have forced upon us the realization that we are part of not just Evanston, Wyoming, but a struggling world community. Certainly the advantage of this world community would be tremendous could but the existing language barrier be overcome.

Doubtless this seems rather remote from the activities of the English Department. What we try to do here is to become acquainted with the grammar and mechanics that will facilitate our use of the American version of the English language; and through a brief survey of literature to gain an appreciation of other peoples's way of life.

Lyman Hill

English - Junior High

For the Junior High, English curriculum goals are gaged by the theory that pupils need aid in developing skills necessary for ease and grade in communicating with others and for efficient interpretation of the written page.

The most important definite objectives are: to listen attentively; to speak fluently and grammatically; to spell accurately; to write legibly; to express ones thoughts clearly and concisely on paper; and to read wisely and widely for knowledge and enjoyment.

It has been shown conclusively that reading is absolutely essential for school success. It probably bears somewhat the same relationship to all of life.

Cora E. Ellis

Industrial Arts

In this machine age in which we are now living, it is not only natural but practically imperative that any good educational system provide a certain amount of education of an industrial nature. A fundamental knowledge of the use of both hand and machine tools will be of untold value to boys going into any of the many walks of life.

Our program this year in the Evanston schools provides for two classes in first year mechanical drawing. There is one class of general shop work for Junior High boys. This class was just begun in our system two years ago. Two classes of beginning woodwork and one of advanced woodwork for high school students are provided. Measures of safety education are stressed in all shop classes.

Leao M. Kirlin

Languages

The 1948 language curriculum write-up in the Devil's Diary stated: 'In this post-war period in which the nations of the world are striving for cooperation in order to establish international peace, what better basis for understanding could be found than a study of the languages and customs of other countries?' Two years later, civilization is again confronted by wars and rumors of wars. Each individual must strive to avert disaster through tolerance and an understanding of the peoples of the world.

Spanish and Latin students, though sometimes prone to ridicule slight differences in the customs of other countries, become aware that in the more important realms of life-human relationships, philosophy, literature, art, education, ideals-the majority of our fellow men are basically the same. In the two years' study of a language it is hoped that students are inspired to continue learning of the cultures of other peoples.

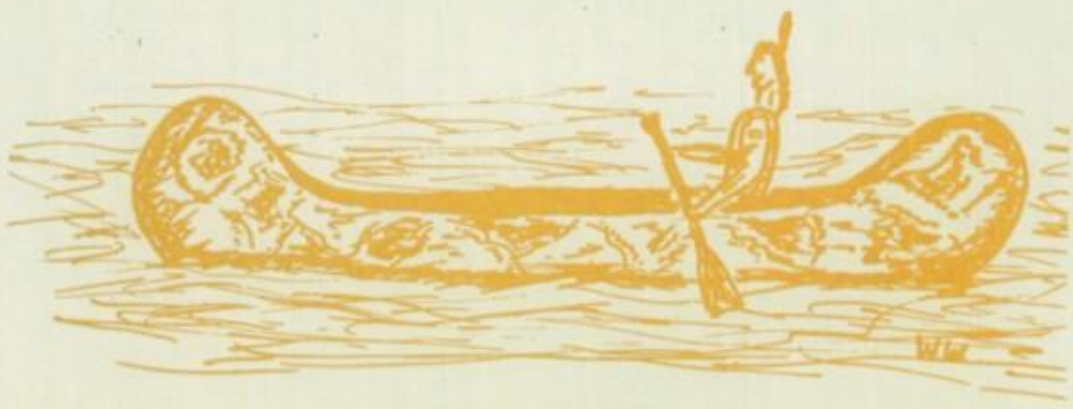
Lois Michelstetter

Mathematics - Senior High

Mathematics is a subject so little understood. So much has been taught by 'rule of thumb' that many do not know the 'why' for doing things. Our aim is to make mathematics 'meaningful.' With this in mind we have a course in general mathematics for those who want a minimum amount; algebra and geometry for those who want college preparatory work; and advanced algebra and trigonometry for those who wish to go into more technical work.

During the last war there was a great demand for people in this last group. From the condition of the world today it seems we should have many more capable mathematicians if we expect our democracy to survive.

Elvira Mehegan



Mathematics - Junior High

A thorough study and review of the fundamental processes of arithmetic is made in Mathematics 7 and 8. The uses of numbers in business, area and volumes of simple figures, informal geometry of size and shape and graphs are topics studied.

An effort is made to establish meaningful concepts of quantity, a knowledge of the number system, the meaning of the four processes, and meaningful vocabulary of arithmetical terms.

The child is expected, eventually, to analyze a situation, to isolate the essential elements for further attention, to make decisions, and to answer pertinent questions. The ability to use quantitative thinking does not develop rapidly; it questions. The ability to use quantitative thinking does not develop rapidly; it comes slowly.

Adeline M. Miller

Typing

Typewriting I aims to give the student the fundamental techniques in the use and care of all parts of a machine. Keyboard technique and knowledge of simple forms of business letters, notes and invitations, straight copy material and outlining all essential for personal use are stressed.

Typewriting II is designed to give students a higher degree of proficiency in business procedures, such as technical tabulations, legal forms, manuscript writing, and rough drafts. In addition to proficiency in typewriting, students learn to use the duplicating machines available in the office. The chief objective of the entire course is the attainment of a commercially acceptable rate of typewritten production.

Ernestine Kabell

Commerce

General business, Shorthand I, Shorthand II and bookkeeping, are the subjects besides typewriting that make up the commercial curriculum.

General business is an introductory course designed to give the student a preview to the field of business and a brief understanding of the principles that should be a part of every student's training.

Bookkeeping offers a fundamental knowledge of recording and analyzing personal and business transactions.

Shorthand I gives the fundamental principles and theory of shorthand. This year we began the simplified Gregg shorthand.

Shorthand II is a review of shorthand theory and concentration on speed and transcription of shorthand into mailable letters. Special emphasis is placed on spelling, punctuation, vocabulary and grammar which are so essential to good letter composition.

These courses offer a good foundation for students desiring to go to college, business school, or directly to work in the business field.

Dorothy Van Driel

Social Science - Senior High

A feasible, practical and working democracy hinges on the entire population of any nation. An illiterate mass, schooled in propaganda, are easy prey for the Communist Party. Now more than ever, in this crucial period, is education for citizenship imperative. The seniors who study American Civics are the voters and office holders of tomorrow. The solution of world problems lies in their hands. The training they receive in the understanding and application of government and its functions prepares them for this task.

By reading the American Observer weekly they keep abreast of national and international events and thus can air their opinions at home and in class in an intelligent manner.

Sophomores are given a historical background in a course in world history taught by Mr. Maurer.

Virginia J. Thompson

Social Studies - Junior High

In order to become intelligent citizens, students need an understanding and appreciation of the development of our nation and of the ideals and principles upon which it was founded and which formed the pattern of its development. Since the future of our nation rests with those who are now students, this understanding and appreciation have had an important place in the study of United States history in Social Studies 8.

Asiatic and Latin American countries are studied in Social Studies 7. One objective of this study has been understanding of other people in order to foster better human relationships. During the second semester, Wyoming history and geography are studied.

Both classes use the weekly Current Events and participate in discussion of current world affairs.

Elizabeth Billing

Physical Education

Girl's physical education is offered to the girls of the Junior and Senior High school. The program affords them an opportunity to become familiar with the major and minor sports.

Inter-class tournaments, Junior and Senior High G. A. A., are held to help develop qualities of leadership and sportsmanship, and to strive for a high standard of proficiency in athletics among its members.

The aims of the course include the development of individual skills and life long interest in sports. It helps to contribute to the general health and welfare of the girls. Both teamwork and sportsmanship continue to be stressed throughout the entire year, as each sport is introduced in the course.

Rosalie Markey

Physical Education

Physical education should not be merely education of the physical, but education through physical activities. The objectives of the physical education program are to teach the future citizens of our community the traits of sportsmanship, fair play and the ability to get along with their associates; to teach them the fundamentals and rules of the various sports so they may become active participants; and to teach them, through physical activities, agility and coordination.

This year hunting and fishing units were included to meet a community need. The boys of this area need to have a thorough understanding of the rules of safety, especially in the handling of firearms.

The activities provided this year included flag football, hunting, volley ball, tumbling and apparatus, wrestling, baseball, basketball, track, tennis, fishing, and games of less organization.

Kay Petersen

Vocational Gudiance

The first duty of the guidance program is to build a plan that will enable the school to know its pupils. The school needs to know them as individuals. Information obtained from these boys and girls is confidential and is kept on file in the guidance office.

Guidance is the process of assimilating the individual in determining, analyzing and understanding his interests, aptitudes, abilities, limitations, opportunities, problems and needs. In the light of this knowledge he has to make a wise choice and adjustment, so that he may live with his fellowmen to the best advantage for himself and society.

There are at least ten areas of the history and development of the individual pupil within which we need information for guidance purposes. They are home background, school history and record of class work, mental ability of academic aptitude, achievement and growth in different fields of study, health, out-of-school experiences, educational and vocational interests, special aptitudes, personality and plans for the future.

Home Economics

Home Economics is a study of family living. The student is just as interested in being a better family member today as she is the future homemaker of tomorrow. To attain her goals she may take four years of home economics in Evanston High.

The Junior home economics course teaches her how to help with family suppers, to care for her own clothes and room, to baby sit, and to keep herself healthy and attractive.

Home Economics I emphasize her place in the home. She learns to cook simple meals, to improve her personality, and to buy and also construct her own clothes. She then advances to Home Economics II which stresses living in the family. Here she will study and cook family meals, learn how to get along better with her family and friends, and how to care for the family during illness.

In Home Economics III the girl is looking toward the future, whether it be marriage or a career in business. She studies home management, home furnishings, meals for two, and wise use of family income so that she may be a competent and charming person whatever her goal may be.

Marjorie Shelley

Natural Science

Both chemistry and biology are taught as laboratory courses. The chemistry pupils spend approximately two periods each week in the laboratory. The laboratory work of the biology pupils varies with the material they study.

The chemistry pupils should develop a basic understanding of elements, compounds, and mixtures. They should acquire a definite amount of skill in setting up and carrying out experiments. At the completion of the course, they should have an appreciation of the major contributions in the field of chemistry, and an appreciation of the part chemistry plays in our everyday life.

The biology pupil should gain some knowledge of the following living things: animals, plants, people, and border-line organisms. From their dissection activities they should gain some knowledge of the structural characteristics of the earthworm, clam, crayfish, grasshopper, frog, and embryo pig. At the end of the course they should have a knowledge and an appreciation of many important biological principiles.

Martha Peets

Activities

If you were to study the calendar of EHS you would be surprised at the variety of activities offered.

For those students interested in music you would find band and mixed chorus.

Have you ever walked through the halls and heard an unfamiliar greeting? It's just the Spanish club students answering in a brief "Buenos Dias".

The Pepsters in their red full sleeved blouses and blue jumpers lead the studentbody in school spirit.

The "E" Club is for the lettermen in basketball, football and track in our high school.

The La Cita Mard and Thespian clubs are organized for students interested in dramatics. They sponsor two plays each year.

Many girls, both in the Junior and Senior High, belong to FHA. They are the Future Homemakers of America.

If you've ever smelled a peculiar odor in the lower hall some evening, you know the Bi-Phy-Chem is at work. This club is for the students who enjoy working in the fields of chemistry, physics and biology.

The Kurphy club, future teachers of America, was organized in the fall of 1950.

All these activities in Evanston High School help the students in carefully choosing their vocations, and avocations.

The Paralyzer, the school newspaper, is published by the journalism students bi-monthly. It brings the students up to date on school news and many other feature attractions.

After reporting, copyreading and typing of the articles by the students and Mrs. Thompson, sponsor, a 'dummy' copy is made. The final draft is stenciled and mimeographed by the students with the exception of the Christmas edition, which is printed by the local printing office. The Christmas edition, which consisted of fourteen pages, included the prize stories and poems. Pictures of the authors as well as the journalism class and school play were added features of the paper.

The high light of the year, as journalists, was a trip to Provo, Utah, where we attended the Journalism Conference at Brigham Young University, and a tour of the Tribune Telegram offices in Salt Lake City. The journalism class of 1950-51 was the first class to actually see the presses roll.

We had thirty-three schools and one individual represented on our exchange list. This included twenty-five schools in Wyoming, five schools in Utah, and one each in Idaho and Nevada. The University of Wyoming also received our paper.

Editor's Note: As Editor of the Paralyzer, I wish to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Thompson, the sponsor, LaVon Martin, the co-editor, and each member of the staff for his cooperation in making the Paralyzer a worth while paper.

The Spotlight, the Junior High newspaper, is published by an editor and assistant editor. The staff is chosen from the ninth grade class, and reporters from the seventh and eighth grades.

Judged by adult standards, some are prone to believe the Junior High school paper is not worth while, but evaluated from the standpoint of student experience in collecting, editing, and handling the mechanical details of the actual publication, the Spotlight is indeed a very worth while project.

The staff puts out a special Christmas paper, carrying out the theme of the holidays. This issue is one of the most important because of the Christmas poetry contest.

Thespian Troupe No. 514

Thespians and La Cita Mard, the two dramatic clubs, have worked together this year in helping promote the back stage work that is essential for good plays.

After the students have earned three points, or thirty hours of stage work, they are eligible for membership in La cita Mard. After earning ten points, they are initiated into the National Thespian Society. Over twenty-five students were initiated into Thespians throughout the year.

Other projects during the year were caroling at Christmas time, sponsoring the "Gay Nineties Review" at the FHA dance, and other clever activities.

"Blithe Spirit"

"I Remember Mama"

Shauna Fyre portrayed "Mama" with a near professional talent in the all school play, I Remember Mama, presented by the Evanston High School December 5, under the direction of John F. Welsh.

Co-starring with Shauna was Doris Creek, who played Katrin, Mama's eldest daughter, with an exceptional understanding of the character of Kathryn Forbes, the author.

Uncle Chris, who was dramatized by Bill Maltby, added sparkle and life to many vivid scenes. Although this is Bill's first stage production, he shows promising signs for future plays.

LaVon Martin characterized Aunt Trina with much warmth and feeling. LaVon gained her applause by the sweet confusion of Trina's ways.

Other members of the Hansen family who should be especially commended for their humanization were Papa, played by Nilo Atkinson; Christine, Shirley Burdett; Dagmar, Judy Rollins; Nels, Elwood Haines. They lived very simply in San Francisco in 1910.

This was an unusual production because of the numerous scenes which required difficult lighting and staging. Some poignant scenes took place in Katrin's study, a little attic room off the stage. Another was the street scene at the right of the kitchen set. The art work in the sets was exceptionally good, especially the color schemes.

The quaint little kitchen was the original set where the family gathered around the table as Mr. Hyde, (Milton Homer) who was their boarder, read them many wonderful books. Here, also, this Norwegian family counted their meager earnings, and Mama in her typical dialect would say, "Is good; we do not have to go to the bank."

"Blithe Spirit"

"Blithe Spirit," a three-act farce by Noel Coward, was presented March 16 by an all-school cast under the direction of John F. Welsh.

The theme of the play surrounds an improbable incident concerning the clever-antics of the Spirit of Mr. Condomines's first wife Elvira, who, by a quirk of fate, appears during a seance to taunt her husband and his second wife Ruth.

Laurels for the outstanding performance went to LaVon Martin for her humorous and naive portrayal of Madam Arcati, who made contact with "the other side" through seances. Her red hair, swagger, and "over dressed" costumes added to the daft personality she depicted.

Elwood Haines enacted the difficult role of Charles Condomine. He ably showed anger, love, confusion and disgust, which were the vicissitudes of moods typical of his character.

As a second wife, Doris Creek, though over-acting in a few scenes, gave a realistic interpretation of a second wife.

Cecile Kochiras comes "back" as the first wife with all the erriness of an apparition. Her gray, flowing gown, gray hair and complexion were perfect correlation with the ghost she depicted.

Laughter was evoked as a result of the abrupt, cockney lines and the bouncing walk of the maid Edith, played by Lois Titmus.

Minor roles were taken by Robert Babcock as Dr. Bradman; and Ardis Troyer, Mrs. Bradman.

The colorful stage setting of yellow, aqua and lavendar-pink provided a delightful atmosphere for the rollicking mockery of the scenes; all of which took place in the home of Charles Condomine.

The play, English in style, was an unusual choice for a high school drama; however, a college production level was attained by Mr. Welsh.

Ted L. Anderson, Director

"Music is to the soul as food is to the body." ---------- Shakespeare.

Why do we need music? The answer is obvious, especially in these troubled times when the world is in one bloody turmoil. The rising, falling swells of tender strains of all music act as food does for human bodies--keeps them going. So does music act for the soul. It is the food of loving tenderness, which keeps the soul aglow.

God bless music and never let it leave this world, for music is man's weapon against the forces of evil which our world has never seen plainer than today. Guard it; treasure it; love it;--because music is one of the few truly great treasures the world has left.

A fine rounded out musical experience, whether vocally, instrumentally or both, not only helps to build the musical organizations necessary to carry on a music program in school, but individually, this experience is building finer men and women who in turn become finer citizens.

Drum Major Donald Frederick, junior, has led the Evanston High School band in parades and football games during the past year. In addition to this, he plays the bass horn in the band.

The twirlers, Doris Creek, Ernestine Bennett, Louise Price and Lorraine Price were chosen in the fall by three judges. Doris Creek, a junior, and head twirler, has completed her second year of twirling. Louise and Lorraine, sophomores, have twirled one year before in the Junior High. Ernestine Bennett, junior, has learned fast during her first year. These girls have performed at the football games, during the halfs of the basketball games, and when the band marches in parades.

The National, State, and Band flags precede the band, carried by the flag-bearers, Joyce Peart, Marie Burleigh, Jackie Martin, Ethel Youngberg and Geneva Blanks.

The Pepster club consists of forty girls who promote school spirit through their activities.

They are voted into the organization in the fall on their ability to earn points toward their letters. They earn these points in various ways; pep skits, making booster signs for the halls, performing at the games and selling refreshments at football games.

One of the main events sponsored by the club was the Bobby Sox dance February 23.

FHA Senior High

The Future Homemakers of America club is a nation wide organization. Any girl who is enrolled in home economics or has a semester credit in the field is eligible for membership.

The group is divided into two chapters--the Junior Chapter for girls in the eighth grade; the Senior Chapter for the Senior High girls.

The activities sponsored by the club were an annual Carnival Dance, Mothers' Tea, Faculty Tea, to send a Christmas box to Germany, and this year the White House Youth Recreation Census.

The United Nations Flag was made by Anna Lou Dean and presented to the community on United Nations' Day. It will be displayed in the auditorium for community and school use.

The "E" Club is one of the major clubs of Evanston High School. It is composed of boys who have earned letters in basketball, football and track. To earn a letter in basketball, the boy must play an average quarter per game during the season. In football he must play eight quarters; and in track he is required to make eight points for his school.

The chief purpose of this organization is to sponsor various kinds of recreation, and to create enthusiasm among the students for sports.

Football on Parade

Evanston's football fortunes were very dim this year with an inexperienced squad reporting for practice. The Red Devils placed fourth in the conference with two wins and six losses.

The seasons record was as follows:

Home Games	We	They	Away From Home	We	They
Superior	13	20	Kemmerer	6	31
Green River	53	0	Superior	0	20
Jackson	26	6	Afton	9	13
Afton	12	6	Rawlins	12	46
Kemmerer	31	6	Green River	25	40

James Perkins made the first all conference team, and Jean Cole and Jack Harrison the second squad.

Due to the inexperience and lack of large boys, the team ran from a straight "T" formation. After gaining valuable experience during the first half of the seasons, the boys came through with three victories in the last four games.

To each and every member of the squad I want to extend my thanks for his cooperation. I hope that all the seniors on the squad meet future situations with the same determination as was shown on the football field, and that the returning boys make the most of their future athletic careers.

The athletic building program of the Evanston Red Devil basketball team of the past two years began to show some results as the record indicated 10 games won and 12 lost during the 1950-51 season.

The preponderance of underclassmen on the first fifteen and the acquirement of good material from the Junior High indicates a continous upswing and potential victories for the coming season.

Officials and coaches of the conference commented on the aggressiveness and the good conduct displayed on the floor by the Red Devils throughout the season.

By participation in basketball a boy learns to discipline himself, to experiment with himself against other boys, physically, emotionally, and mentally. It is my sincere hope that during my coaching duties, I have been able to help develop such qualities of character that will enable the boys to face life with confidence and determination.

The basketball season of 1950-51 proved to be very successful for the Junior High Racers as they won the annual Evanston Junior High Class A tournament, March 31, by defeating Rock Springs 26-24. In seasonal play the Racers wound up with eighteen victories and two defeats. An attribute of this year's team was their will to win and excellent teamwork. The boys worked arduously making the results self evident.

My aim has been to teach the boys the fundamentals of basketball. It is my fervent wish that the boys continue to work hard and have the desire to go on the floor and do their best at all times. Remember, squad members, "victory comes through hard work." To the members of the team I want to extend my sincere thanks for their cooperation and that they may have successful athletic futures.

G. A. A. - Junior High

Dear Diary

At nine a.m. on September five
EHS again became alive.

On September 7 the "Sophs" gave us a show--
'Twas "The Bells of St. Marys" as we all know.

On September 13 was a hamburger fry
But just for the faculty--not you and "I."

On the 28th came the flute and the harp
In a National Assembly, which really was sharp.

On October 16, the Steeplejacks came--
Their unusual profession brought them their fame.

The FHA Carnival dance was quite an affair
On October 21, with almost everyone there.

Our Homecoming, October 28, was a big day
Because the game ended the right way.

Our Hallowe'en film was "The Mummy's Hand"
For chills and thrills it really was grand.

On November 4, juvenile delinquency had a great fall
When everyone went to the Thespian's Baby Ball.

On November 10, the Sophomore Stomp was a dream
For "Shine On, Harvest Moon" was the theme.

We all agreed at Thanksgiving time
That dismissing school wasn't a crime.

On December 1, "I Remember Mama" couldn't be beat
And we had to go early to get a good seat.

The Music Makers came on the fifth of December
And gave an assembly we'll always remember.

The Spanish Club celebrated Christmas in the usual way
With a party held on the year's shortest day.

For December 21, Santa soon made a date
To visit the children, which really was great.

On December 22, after a thrilling program,
Our Christmas vacation really began.

Since all good things must end, it wasn't just fate
That took us back to classes on January eight.

The very next day, Mexican Dancers came our way--
Their music and dancing was really okay.

Dear Diary

On January 19, was the council's big chance
To give you a ticket at their gay traffic dance.

The first part of school really went fast
For on January 22, half of it was past.

The Melo Marimbas with their music so gay
On February 13, came our way.

The Pepster dance was a gala affair
With loud socks and cakes everywhere.

An organ assembly was next on the list;
It was something we'd be sorry to have missed.

The Junior High players were really on the beam
When in their Invitational Tournament they came out supreme.

With hopeful hearts, we set out on our journey
On March 8-9-10, to go to the tourney.

"Blithe Spirit," our second play, really was swell
For good entertainment it sure rang the bell.

Good Friday was really a good day for us-
No school, no worries, no studies, no fuss.

On March 22 came University of Utah's band;
We all agreed that it was the best in the land.

On March 30, we had a chemistry show;
It was a good assembly and we were glad we could go.

On April 21, the hearts of the Juniors swelled
For this was the day their Prom was held.

On the 26 of April was a concert by the band
For their wonderful performance, they received a big hand.

The Senior Hop came on April twenty-eight
And to get there early, we could hardly wait.

The FHA mothers, smiling with glee,
On the ninth day of May, came to their tea.

Baccalaureate was held on the 20th of May--
All the Seniors are sure to remember that day.

The 23rd of May was Senior Class Night--
To all who attended, it brought much delight.

Of all of our school days--in winter and fall--
Graduation on May 25, was the climax of all.

Janyce -
Good Luck
in Every thing to attempt to do. See
ya around next year.
Welcome to Sr High School.
